CATALOGUE BY WILLIAM H. STROBRIDGE.

INTRODUCTION.

There is in almost every collection of coins, a particular class upon which the possessor has bestowed more than ordinary pains—some department in which he takes more than a general interest. It is only by patiently waiting for opportunities to secure the best out of many such collections that a cabinet like the one described in this catalogue can be formed : for the quality of its various elements is undoubtedly up to the highest standard, and every department appears to have enjoyed the maker's partial favor.

It is for this reason that the present catalogue is likely to receive a cordial welcome at the hands of a large number of persons interested in coins. It is not alone the collector of the coins and medals of England and Scotland—of fine American coins—of the rare and expensive political medals and tokens of our own country—of our costly Colonial series—of fine and rare historical coins and medals—or the lover of that higher branch of pure Numismatics—ancient coins—that may expect to find something here to his taste. In this catalogue is much that cannot fail to suit the wants and requirements of ALL CLASSES of advanced collectors, and it is this consciousness that has made its preparation a pleasant task. It would be useless to deny that under other circumstances such work would become monotonous ; to enumerate and describe, day after day, objects in which the writer feels no especial interest, needs the assurance that his labor will be appreciated by amateurs, to keep it above the level of literary drudgery.

But these remarks hardly apply to this particular catalogue. It is but the truth to say that no other collection of coins and medals has given the writer more satisfaction and enjoyment from first to last in his various relations to and dealings with it than this.

It was formed by an amateur and scholar whose industry in his pursuit, and knowledge of coins, were simply wonderful. When compelled by a partial loss of sight to give it up, it was transferred to another amateur, who being willing to invest a fortune in coins, is certainly entitled to his lustre.

By far the larger part of the original collection, with important additions from Mr. Parmelee's own cabinet, is now offered for sale. Nothing out of the American department has been changed, and the changes that have been made, although resulting in gain to the new possessor, have hardly been attended with loss to the collection, when due credit is allowed for the additions.

I cannot dismiss the subject without speaking once more of the varied as well as excellent character of the coins and medals which this catalogue comprises.

The extraordinary quality of the colonial department (although by no means large), is fully equalled by that of the series of U. S. cents, and these in their turn deserve no higher praise than to be favorably compared with the Washington series, and that of Political Medals and Tokens. The silver coins and patterns, struck at the National Mint, would make an ordinary sale attractive, and yet it is doubtful whether these will command more admiration than the really excellent division appropriated to the English series.

The ADDENDA is another property. It is the collection of J. Augustus Johnson, Esq., gathered by him while he was United States Consul-General for Syria, with his residence at Beyrout. It will be found highly interesting and novel, especially as to the numerous Jewish coins, and the pretty little silver pennies struck by the Princes of the Crusades.

I hope the catalogue will receive the compliment of a thorough examination, and that its defects will either be overlooked or forgiven. I might rather almost venture to invite criticism, in view of the valuable assistance that my friends, Messrs. Balmano and James, have, with such great disinterestedness, given me. This public acknowledgment of their services is the least return that I could make, yet it is far more than their modesty would permit them to ask.

W. H. STROBRIDGE.

[The letters J. and G. are explained to mean that James, Earl of Murray, was Governor when the piece was coined.]

[This was the last gold coined before the union of the crowns.]

Silver.

- 40 50 DAVID II. 1329–1371. Penny. Side face crowned, with sceptre erect; rev. cross and four stars, VILLA EDINBVRGH. Well preserved and rare.
- 55 51 — Groat. Same head, DAVID DEI GRATIA REX SCOTORVM; rev. DNS. PROTECTOR MS. & LIBERATOR MS. on a large circle, VILLA EDINBVRGH on a smaller, a cross dividing all, with four stars in the angles within the inscription. Extremely fine; rare.
- 30 52 — Duplicate and triplicate. Good. 2 pieces
- 13 53 — Half-groat. Same type. Pierced. Very fair.
- [David the Second was the first King of Scotland that coined groats.]
- 55 54 ROBERT II. (succeeded David II.) 1371–1390. Groat, much like his predecessor's, but the legend is ROBERTVS DEI GRA. REX SCOTTORVM (two t's). Struck at Edinburgh. Very fine; scarce.
- 75 55 ROBERT III. 1390–1406. Groat. Full face, crowned, without sceptre, legend as before; rev. same arrangement of cross and circles, but with three balls instead of stars in each angle of the cross. Struck at VILLA DE PERTH. Very fine and rare.

- 65 56 ROBERT III. Duplicate. Nearly as fine.
- 80 57 JAMES V. 1513-1542. Groat. Nearly side face, and crown within a rose, JACOBVS DEI GRA REX SCOTORVM; rev. cross fleuri, with two thistle-heads and two spur-royals in the angles. Weight, 1 dr. 18 gr. In fair preservation and extremely rare.
- 60 58 — Groat. Side face, closed crown, JACOBVS, 5, &c.; rev. the Scotch shield on a cross, circumscribed OPPIDVM EDINBVRGI. Extremely fine and rare.
- 30 59 — Duplicate. Very fine.
- 25 60 — Triplicate. Good.
[Groats, half-groats, pennies or halfpennies, were coined no longer in Scotland].
- 45 61 MARY, 1542-1587. A base coin with the date (1557) on both sides; obv. the Scottish shield crowned, counterstamped with a star over the letter M. to l. and R. to r.; rev. a large cross, open in the centre, in which is a small cross, crowns in the angles of the larger. Her name alone. Size of the half-testoon. Very fair.
[I do not find this coin described, and presume it to be rare.]
- 3.12 62 — Half-Testoon, with the cypher of Francis and Mary crowned; rev. inscription in a square, JAM. NON. SVNT. DVO. SED. VNA. CARO., 1559. Very fine and rare.

[These were all coined before her return from France.]
- 20 64 — Base coins, minted at Edinburgh; obv. thistle crowned; rev. St. Andrew's Cross, and one of F. and M. Good lot. 3 pieces
- 20 65 — Others of Mary alone. 2 pieces
- 3.00 66 JAMES VI. 1587-1625. Piece of an ounce weight; obv. Scottish arms crowned: to l. J. crowned, to r. R. crowned: JACOBVS 6. DEI GRATIA. REX. SCOTORVM; rev. a drawn sword upright, with a crown on its point; a hand pointing to three X's (for thirty shillings), with the date 15-67 below, circumscribed with PRO ME. SI. MERIOR IN ME. Very fine and rare crown.

[This motto was borrowed from Trajan, and suggested by George

Buchanan, the young King's tutor. This crown was the first struck by James. It will be noticed that his mother's "Yew-tree" dollar bears the same date; also, that there is an account of several silver medals, commemorating great and sorrowful passages in the Queen's life, struck afterwards.]

- 2.00 67 JAMES VI. A similar piece of thirty shillings, dated 15-68, counterstamped with the Scottish thistle. Equally fine and rare.
- 1.00 68 — Shield crowned: JACOBVS 6. D.G.R. SCOTORVM, 1591; rev. a naked sword and balance, HIS DIFFERT. REGE. TYRANNVS Weight, 2 dwt. 14 gr. (called the Balance Mark.) Very fine; rare.

Drachm.
- 3.25 1017 LEONTIUM. Head with garland of ivy; rev. lion's head in profile to right, four grains of barley surrounding, ins. LEONTINON. Very fine and rare. Tetradrachm.

[It was a pardonable fiction of the Leontians that these grains of barley typified the fertility of their soil. The Ancients had ever some device to disclose the truth to the initiated and conceal it from the vulgar. Now that the veil of Isis has been lifted, and the mysteries of Ceres exposed to the light of day, it is not surprising that the practical modern mind should see in this reverse the simple story that John Barleycorn makes his votaries as bold as a lion. A friend adds the suggestion that this view finds support in the ancient proverb, "Leontini semper ad pocula."]

- 40 1018 MALEA. Peloponessus. Obv. a large M occupying the field of the coin, below a caduceus; rev. a bird flying to left. Very rare and fine. Drachm.
- 150 1019 MESSANA (Sicily). Obv. biga drawn by mules; rev. MESENION, hare running. Extremely fine. Tetradrachm.
- [This city was the ancient ZANCLE; it took this name 492 B.C., after its capture by Anaxitaos, tyrant of Rhegium. The coins of Messana are therefore very old.]

Ancient Copper Coins of Spain.

(Celtiberia.)

[The coins that follow in the next few lots form a most interesting and desirable series, which will amply repay the numismatic student for his labor in deciphering. Here may be found coins of the ancient cities of Gades, Bactica, Barsaba, Iliberis, etc., and he is recommended to the publications of M. De Sauley, H. Noel Humphreys, and other learned authors for further information, as the limits of a catalogue prepared for a public auction will not allow a more extended description.]

United States Cents.

- 5.00 1732 1793. Head, hair flowing; rev. endless chain, in legend AMERI.; obv. fine; rev. very fine. Rare.
- 5.00 1733 Another of this rare type, very sharp; has been cleaned.
- 3.00 1734 Same date and type, but "United States of AMERICA" around the chain; extremely fine, barely circulated. Very valuable and rare.
- 3.25 1735 Another, same type; a variety of the chain cent, with close date and no dot after the word "Liberty." Fine and rare.
- 5.00 1736 One with the dot, quite a different head, but little circulated, but rather weak obverse, and scratched; the reverse stronger and finer. Very rare.
- 0.00 1737 Same date; rev. "One Cent," within olive wreath; a splendid uncirculated cent, with fine steel color and polished surface, without the slightest scratch or abrasion, only the tips of the masses of hair touched by friction. Rare and valuable.
- 8.00 1738 Another of this type, the obverse from the same die; the reverse from a different die, the sprigs of berries in the wreath much shorter; almost as fine as last; a superb and valuable cent.
- 5.50 1739 A cent of this date, never in circulation, with ONE HUNDRED FOR A DOLLAR impressed on the edge; the planchet before receiving the impression was a little rough and the lines were not all removed by the pressure of the dies, still it is a very remarkably fine cent, and of the highest rarity.

- 11.00 1740 One with the ordinary ornamentation on the edge, the trefoil between the head and date more broad and spreading than on other varieties; the obv. die appearing to have sprung across the centre. Extremely fine; rare.
- 5.50 1741 One, and the last of this type, considerably rubbed across the masses of hair, but in all respects a good cent.
- 19.50 1742 Same date, on a broader planchet, with a Liberty cap on a pole over the shoulder; from the sound dies. Extremely fine and rare.
- 8.50 1743 Another of the "Liberty cap" type. Fine impression, but the surface behind the head hurt by corrosion; still very fine for the type.
- 2.00 1744 1794; on a broad planchet resembling the cents of the previous year. Rare variety and extremely fine.
- 1.75 1745 One on a smaller and thicker planchet, with high milled rim. Very fine.
- 1.00 1746 A cent of this date, with ONE HUNDRED A DOLLAR (the FOR omitted) on the edge. In only fair condition, but excessively rare.
- 1.00 1747 A sequence of seven varieties of the cents of this date. Every one fine. 7 pieces
- 1.75 1748 1795; on thick planchet, the lettering continued on the edge. Fine; rare variety.
- 2.75 1749 Another, equally fine; the lettering on the edge continued, but the planchet thinner. Rare.
- 3.00 1750 One with the edge plain; on the obverse a broader milling, "one cent" higher within the wreath on the reverse; almost a proof impression, but slightly circulated. Rare.
- 2.25 1751 One equally fine; ONE CENT in the centre of the wreath. Very desirable.
- 3.50 1752 A strictly uncirculated cent of this date and type; on thick planchet, but with the edge plain. Very rare.
- 11.50 1753 A variety known as the "Jefferson head"; a very fair impression. Excessively rare.
- 2.50 1754 A duplicate of this rare variety. Rather poor.
- 3.50 1755 1796; Liberty cap behind the head. Fine, but little circulated. Rare.
- 1.00 1756 Same, marked by Mr. Brevoort No. 3 obverse, No. 2 reverse; on a planchet of unusual thickness, resembling one variety of the preceding year; dark, but sharp. Very rare.

A Cabinet of Greek Medals of the Decadrachm and Tetradrachm size, reproduced in fac-simile by the electrotype process from unique and rare originals, in the British and other museums.

[It is only necessary to see a single tray of these beautiful coins to comprehend the superiority of Greek Art. Every other system seems, by comparison, either rule or overdone. The wonderful effects produced by a few unerring lines remain to the present day entirely unequalled. As a full and accurate description accompanies each piece, and will be delivered with it to the purchaser, it would seem quite unnecessary to do more than arrange the several lots in trays, each one free from duplicates, and leave to the buyer the selection of trays.]

- 60 2491 Decadrachm in silver of Athens, Syracuse, and Agrigentum; Tetradrachm of Antigonos, Amphipolus, Clazomene, Mansolus, Rhodes, Catana, Rhegium, Samos, Gnosus, Thurium, Thasus, Magnesia, Miletus, Persens, Nicomedes, Prusias, Pharnaces, Attalus, Tigranes, etc., etc; superb gold medallion of Ptolemy III. with four heads. 40 pieces

Phoenician Copper Coins.

[This neglected class of coins is really one of the most interesting of antiquity. It is true we are here less frequently, than on those of the Greeks and Romans, brought in contact with familiar historical names and incidents, but we see on these coins symbols of the commercial genius which characterized this nation of Merchant-Princes, as well as evidences and illustrations and that idolatrous religion about which we read so much in the Bible.]

280	BERYTUS (Beyront); head; rev. dolphin on a trident; rev. female on a prow; rev. Neptune standing, etc.	6 pieces
281	SIDON; head of Elegabalus; rev. idol in a holy cart; rev. Astarte in a similar cart; rev. prow, etc. Larger size.	4 pieces
282	PHOENICIAN Coin, with the usual emblems of navigation; rev. two Persians (known by their hats) in a biga; undoubtedly very rare and valuable, with others, representing Astarte in her temple, on a galley, and in other situations.	6 pieces
